New Game Law

A new game law that should be passed by all States would contain the following:

"Book agents may be shot between October 1 and September 1; Spring Poets from March 1 to June 1; Automobile Speed demons from January 1 to January 1; Road Hogs from April 15 to April 15; Amateur Hunters from September 1 to February 1; War Talkers no closed season; Any man who accepts a paper for two years and then, when the bill is presented, says 'I never ordered it,' may be killed on sight and shall be buried face downward in quicklime so as to destroy the germs and prevent the spread of the infection."

OBITUARY

On the 6 day of January 1915 at 7 a. m. Rev. M. H. Broughton of Hinnar Ky. was called to his reward beyond. Brother Broughton was a minister of the gospel; and have fought a good fight, he have been a baptist worker for more than 15 years, and is well known over the county as an able and steady worker for God. He has gone to rest to await the call of his beloved wife and two little children. Brother Marsh was loved by all the Baptist workers for Christ. The writer is assured of his rest in that world where parting will be no more. We extend our sympathy to his wife and little ones in their sad bereavement. A. F. Finkbeiner.

A PLEA FOR A NEW HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING

Citizens of Barbourville, is it not time for us to awaken to the fact that our city should have a new school building—a new County and City High School? Since the school laws of Kentucky are compulsory, is it fair to our boys and girls that they receive the limited education which the conditions of the present school building afford them?

Imagine only six rooms to accommodate over 325 students! Is it just to either the teacher or the student to live and work in such over-crowded rooms—an average of 50 to 60 in each room? This requires strict discipline and thus tends not only to rob the teacher and the student of the time which should be devoted to class work but also turns the thought of the students from their study.

The sanitary conditions of our building are deplorable, having crowded rooms, being badly ventilated and poorly heated. In some of the rooms students are forced to face the windows, which in course of time will affect their eyes. Old fashioned desks are used which in many cases do not fit the student, thus requiring the student to fit the desk. Can we say "Sana mens in sano corpore" when these circumstances exist? The conditions of the building against fire are extremely deplorable—there are no fire extinguishers, no fire escapes and both doors to the main entrance open inwardly—a strict violation of the laws of the State.

What a miracle could be wrought with a new building, where all these conditions would be alleviated! At present there is not ample space for Chapel to be held—no room large enough to allow all the students to assemble for a few moments' worship each morning, however, for the time being, every Friday morning the 325 students are assembled in two rooms partially thrown open for devotional exercise; here one can realize the importance of a new building with an auditorium which will allow the students to assemble and reap the vast benefits of an every-morning chapel exercise. But it is impossible to enumerate the many, many opportunities which would be presented by a new building. As it now is the students are, in a way, stunted, warped and thwarted in their quest for knowledge. For, in all Kentucky, there can nowhere be found any brighter, more zealous, more studious, eager students than is found in the boys and girls here in our public schools; a fine school spirit exists among the students and an ever-eager desire for higher knowledge and training.

I have taken it upon myself to carry two full years of High School work, at a sacrifice in view of getting a new building so that next year we may have a full four year course. In the adoption of text books last year, the Board of Education adopted books for four years work, and this is the time for our school to become a full fledged High School for the outlook is fine, owing to the fact that there are now in attendance over 80 students in the 8th grade. This means that next year most of this number will be ready for High School work and a large seventh grade will be promoted to the 8th grade, so that in a very short time we could build up a fine High School.

It is here, fellow citizens, that

I wish to appeal to you. Shall we debar these students from further education, when they have just reached the critical point in their lives when they are beginning to realize the value of an education? It is at this point that they feel as tho they ought to be teachers and, sadly to say, some of them actually do take up this work. Their intentions are good but their results bad for they not only hinder their own highest development but also that of our State. Kentucky will never raise her standard of education until she has better qualified teachers.

But there are those in our midst who will say "Why should we have a High School in our city, when we have two fine private schools?" True indeed, but what is to become of those (and they are in the majority) who cannot afford to pay their way through our two private schools? Can we debar them an education, which is rightly due them?

We owe much praise to our two private schools but I regret to say that they have been the means of keeping back the establishment of a High School, for the people of this town have refrained from enrolling students in the graded school, owing to the condition of the building and thus these schools are carrying on the work which should be done in the public school. If we had a High School then our private schools could afford to teach Preparatory, Normal and College courses which would send out (1) better trained teachers, (2) students could prepare for college at home and (3) students could obtain a standard college education, whereas now many of our energetic students have to spend all or most of their means for the equivalent of a 4 year High School education, thereby spending the money which ought to have been used to put them through college. Does not this fact alone deserve our most worthy consideration?

A new High School building would be not only a means of increasing educational progress in our town but also in our whole county, for it being a County and City High School would open its doors of opportunity to every boy and girl in Knox County so that it would be an invaluable means of awakening the citizens of our county to the dawn of better conditions. It would mean less expense to the country boy or girl who wishes a High School education, for it will mean free tuition. In a few years the State will require completion of a High School course as a qualification of a county teacher, so does it not behoove us, as citizens that we shall use our influence for the erection of such a High School building that will meet the demands of the time.

Our city Board of Education is doing everything in its power for the establishment of such a building. Already blue prints have been submitted to them but they must have more than blue prints; they must have the hearty co-operation and loyal support of every citizen in this city and this county.

Persons have expressed their willingness to give donations for the proposed school building but at this time such is not so urgent, what we wish now is not donations but appropriations, and we who are interested in this matter of education, we urge you to use your influence that it will create such a popular feeling among the citizens of our county that "public opinion," the greatest power of the people, will answer the cry and meet the demands of the school children of Barbourville and Knox County.

Then, why can we not have a fine modern High School building to adorn and grace our town and community which will mean so much to us and our posterity? Hugh M. Oldfield, Supt. of City School.

Caleb Powers Speaks

On the floor of the House of Representatives the other day Caleb Powers made a strong speech in favor of the Holston National Prohibition Resolution. The Cincinnati Enquirer quotes from Mr. Powers' speech as follows: "Every time a pesky tick straddles the back of a mangy steer in any of the barren wastes of the Sunny South, hasn't the State's right statesman got up in consternation and yelled to Uncle Sam for help? And hasn't Uncle Sam been generous in expending money to eradicate the Texas tick? No questions raised about State's rights then."—Adv.

GOOD ROADS

Knox County to Take Her Place in the Front Rank

Declining longer to remain in the mud and ruts the loyal sons of Knox County who have the good name of the county and the welfare of her citizens at heart as well as the best interests of the present and future citizenship of the county in view, have determined to have good roads.

A petition calling upon the County Judge to make an order calling an election for March 6th, to take a vote on the question of issuing $200,000 of bonds for building roads was put in circulation one day last week and in less than a day's time more than three hundred taxpayers and voters of the county signed said petition; this was more than double the number of names required, but practically every person who saw the petition and understood its import anxiously and willingly signed it. There was a ready response by all "We want good roads". Hon. Thos. G. Hammons, County Judge, immediately on the filing of said petition informed a large assemblage of people in the county court room of the import and purpose of the petition and stated that a bond issue was the only means of obtaining good roads. He heartily endorsed the move and at once, examining the petition and finding it requisite under the law, acted by making the necessary order calling the election for March 6, 1915 to vote upon the question of issuing $200,000 in bonds to build good roads.

This money, if voted, will enable the county to build good pike roads to almost every part of the county, connecting us with the adjoining counties; this money will be spent in the county, and every man able to work or who has a wagon and team will be able to participate in this large expenditure, and better still, be able to travel over good roads the year round.

We all agree that good roads are the crying need of the county, but there are some who oppose the issuing of bonds to build them. Why? They do not know, further than to say it will saddle a great debt upon the county and we can never pay it. But let those who oppose this, look at it in the light of reason and from an economical standpoint, and they will, if candid, admit the proposed bond issue is the only way, the safe way and the economical and sensible way.

This bond issue will not increase the tax rate one cent; one half of the money will be paid back to the county by the State; and this sum to be paid back by the State, unless we approve of the bond issue, will not only go to other counties, but the taxpayers of this county will contribute, annually, about $2000 a year to likewise go to other counties. Instead of spending $10,000 each year on the roads, as we are now doing, and getting no benefit from the money, we will by this bond issue, have the money we would spend in twenty years, to spend in one or two years, and be able to build real pike roads, and in addition have $100,000 from the State for the same purpose. In other words, by the bond issue, and the aid from the State, we will be able to build permanent roads to all parts of the county and get the benefit of the whole sum at once, whereas, to continue the old system, we dump the same money to the tune of $10,000 each year into the mudholes and on roads which are mere makeshifts—a practical waste of that much of the people's money each year.

No man having the interest of the county, himself or his children at heart should oppose this bond issue. When he votes against it, he votes to saddle upon the tax payers of the county the burden of taxation to furnish money to be squandered in temporary makeshift and in mud holes, and do no good of a permanent nature to the roads; and in addition, he votes five cents on the one hundred dollars of property on this county, to be devoted to the building of roads in other counties of the State. In other words, by voting against the bond issue, he votes for the people of Knox county to pay $2000 each year to be used in building roads in other counties of the State. If he votes for the bond issue, he votes to have this same money used in permanent roads built in Knox County and have the State contribute a dollar for every dollar we vote for that purpose.

The question that every voter should put to himself, in considering this matter is how can the best interests of the county and myself be promoted; shall I stand for the old mud hole route or shall I stand for progress and prosperity, for getting a dollars worth for the taxes we pay? There can be but one answer, for the man who believes in economy and the uplift of the community, and that is, he shall vote for the bond issue.

Whether the bonds be voted or not, the taxes we pay will be the same one year with another, bonds or no bonds. The issue of bonds will not make the road tax, to be paid, one cent more, than it will be, if the bonds are not voted.

The great difference to the taxpayers is that in voting the bonds, we will have the money sufficient to build good pike roads, and when built the taxes we pay from year to year will be paid with the assurance, satisfaction and knowledge that we are paying for something real and tangible, and not for the purpose of repairing mud holes.

The farmers of the county will profit more from the building of good roads than any body else. The City of Barbourville and the corporations will pay more than four-fifths of the taxes, the farmer about one-fifth. Yet the farmers and land owners and laboring class of the county reap the greatest benefits. Why—because it enables them to get their surplus produce, grain and other things to market at the season of the year, namely the winter season—when they have more time to attend to such things than any other season of the year. During the Winter after their crops are raised and there is but little to do on the farm with good roads, they can realize this true by taking their surplus grain, hay and other provisions to the market. Getting out timber to market or take to the mill and haul lumber made for necessary repairs of houses, barns, fences, etc. for the coming year.

Preparation for farming like any other business demands that the farmer should probably utilize all his spare time. How can he do so during the winter months without good roads? As the conditions now are, the farmer necessarily loses about one-fourth of his time hedged in and obstructed by bad roads.

Why Knox County Should Vote $200,000 for Good Roads.

The biggest question that will have to be solved by the people of Knox County in 1915 is the question will we have good roads?

This is not a question for idle curiosity no slothful indifference to consider and solve. It is a question that calls for the shrewdest consideration by the highest intelligence in this county.

One hundred and forty years ago our forefathers came to this country from North Carolina and Virginia. This country was then a howling wilderness. The only semblance of a road for years was a mere bridle path. The next step in road building was the old time sled road. There were not any wagon roads then in use in Kentucky. By the end of 1825 wagons made their advent into Kentucky and when the proposition of building wagon roads was first proposed a big opposition to such a scheme was present. After a struggle such opposition was overcome and a few good dirt roads were built. I mean good roads for that time and age of Kentucky's progress. One time in one county I know of free schools being voted down by a majority of the people. I make this statement to keep folks from being surprised when other folks oppose the proposition of voting bonds to build pikes, which is the next step in road building in Knox County.

I have read the Bosworth Good Road Law, and I do not hesitate to say that it is the best law of its kind ever enacted in Kentucky. One of the chief objections to the proposition to vote bonds for roads, I hear, is the danger of graft. Some people are afraid some of the money may not get to the roads. The law itself provides that there shall be a competent inspector duly sworn to inspect every inch of this road before anything is paid out upon it. This law practically eliminates the possibility of graft. Practically ever dollar that is supposed to go to the benefit of the roads will be used upon the roads. The scare-crow of graft could be forgotten very easily. Another objection to voting the bonds comes from a people who are afflicted with a narrow jealousy. If they can not get a pike up to their own door they don't want to pay taxes to build roads for their neighbors. There is a small grain of excuse for this objection. But there is not much liberality in the taxpayer who objects to letting his neighbor have a road just because he cannot have one by his own doorstep.

Now we come down to the real issue for the people of Knox County to settle. In the first place the Bosworth Good Road Law provides that whether the people of Knox County wish or not a tax of 5 cents on each one hundred dollars worth of taxable property for state road purposes must be paid by the people of the county. If Knox County does not provide an equal tax of 5 cents on each one hundred dollars of taxable property for county road purposes, none of this state road tax can or will be returned to Knox County for road purposes by the State Road Commission; but if Knox County does appropriate an amount equal to this tax which the state collects from Knox County then the state will return to Knox County such said state road tax to be used in Knox county's roads.

Then the question resolves itself into whether we desire to get this $200,000 from the State. Do we desire to build nearly one hundred miles of good roads? If it didn't cost you anything you would, would you not? Now we come to this proposition. The cities of Louisville, Lexington, Paducah, Covington, Frankfort and the railroads, automobiles, breweries and distilleries of the state are ready to build as many miles of roads in Knox County as the people in the county will build for themselves. How many miles do you want the state to build for you. I want the state to build 50 miles. And the only thing it will cost the county to get 100 miles of fine macadamized roads in Knox County is to vote for the $200,000 worth of bonds. $200,000 from the county secures $200,000 from the state. The town of Barbourville will pay one third of this $200,000 which Knox County votes. This will only leave $134,000 to be paid by the people of the county outside of Barbourville, where the roads will be built. Of this $134,000 which rural Knox County will pay, the large corporations, mine owners, railroads, lumber companies etc. will pay approximately $94,000. This leaves but $40,000 to be paid by the individual property owners, such as lumber haulers, merchants and farmers. Think of it! Rural Knox County will get all of one hundred miles of splendid beautiful pike costing the magnificent sum of $400,000 and will pay but one tenth of the cost of said roads. In other words the state at large, Barbourville and Knox County corporations will put up nine dollars every time tax people in the rural communities put one dollar to build good roads for Knox County's rural citizens. Will we country people who live on the hill-sides and heads of the creeks accept this most unheard of proposition?

The real truth about this proposition to vote bonds for road purposes is too good to seem true. It is just like a gift from Santa Claus. Another thing I wish to call attention to is the fact that the new law provides that the people who pay poll taxes only will not pay one cent of this road tax. So far as they are concerned the pikes are coming to them as an absolute free gift.

I am afraid many people in the county may not see this proposition in its true light soon enough to vote right on March 6th. I am afraid that the mass of the great common people of the rural district who are the equal of any people on earth in brains, and heart and soul, will momentarily forget that the corporations are busy skinning this county of its material wealth are not paying to the people what is just and right for what material they take away and out of the county forever. I am afraid the county people will let these lumber companies and mine owners will some of these days pull up their equipments, root and branch and leave Knox County— with her soil worn out and washed away, her timber cut down and her coal exhausted. Then Mr. Farmer with no permanent roads in the county how will you make a living for your family? How will you like to live in old Knox County then? One third of the people who live in Oklahoma today are former Kentuckians who moved away from our distasteful and disgraceful mud roads. If you let this opportunity pass to vote bonds for Knox County's roads and if you wait till the corporations leave the county you will be in a plight equal to being between the devil and the deep blue sea.

But with good roads into every nook and corner of the county, paid for by the corporations before they leave, every farmer can be independent in Knox county till Gabriel toots his horn.

We know that good roads, like good streets, make habitation among them most desirable; they enhance the value of farm lands, lands, facilitate transportation, and add untold wealth to the producers and consumers of the country; they economize time, give labor a lift and make millions in money; they save wear and tear of worry and waste; they beautify the country and bring it in touch with the city; they aid the social and religious and educational and industrial progress of the people; they make better homes and happier freeways; they are the avenues of trade and transportation of marketable products—the maximum burden at the minimum cost; they are the elements that bring the country together in thrift and industry, and intelligence; and patriotism; they promote social intercourse, prevent intellectual stagnation, and increase the happiness

If you let this opportunity pass to vote bonds for Knox County's roads and if you wait till the corporations leave the county you will be in a plight equal to being between the devil and the deep blue sea.

But with good roads into every nook and corner of the county, paid for by the corporations before they leave, every farmer can be independent in Knox county till Gabriel toots his horn.

We know that good roads, like good streets, make habitation among them most desirable; they enhance the value of farm lands, lands, facilitate transportation, and add untold wealth to the producers and consumers of the country; they economize time, give labor a lift and make millions in money; they save wear and tear of worry and waste; they beautify the country and bring it in touch with the city; they aid the social and religious and educational and industrial progress of the people; they make better homes and happier freeways; they are the avenues of trade and transportation of marketable products—the maximum burden at the minimum cost; they are the elements that bring the country together in thrift and industry, and intelligence; and patriotism; they promote social intercourse, prevent intellectual stagnation, and increase the happiness and prosperity of our producing masses; they contribute to the greatness of the city and the glory of the country; they give employment to our idle workmen, distribute the necessities of life—the products of the fields and the forests and the factories—encourage energy and husbandry inculcate love for our scenic wonders and make mankind better and happier.

Did you ever think about the biggest difference between the pleasure of living in Knox County with her splendid big hearted people and the pleasure of living in the New Jerusalem? To me the biggest difference lies in the difference presented by public roads. Compare or rather contrast the mud roads of Knox County and the beautiful gold paved streets and roads of the New Jerusalem and I think you will agree with me that the Great God is a believer in good roads.

Some Chickens

Rev. J. A. Bretz, who graduated from Union College, is a minister of the Methodist Church, and is now living at Mt. Dora, Fla. He is a chicken raiser, and has some very fine breeds. We saw a letter from him to his father the other day in which he stated to his father that he was leaving that city to take up his work at Espaula, N. Mex., and stated in a confidential way that he had sold his chickens, and that he sold one dozen for the enormous sum of $100.

His father, Col. G. F. Bretz, says that he has seen the cove of birds referred to and that they are of the very best breed.

There is no excuse why people do not raise more chickens in this country. There is more money in them than any one thing a man could follow. Eggs are now 35 cts. per dozen and turkeys and chickens never before sold for so much as they do now.

Lame back may come from overwork, cold settled in the muscles of the back or from disease. In the two former cases the right remedy is BALLARD'S SNOW LINIMENT. It should be rubbed in thoroughly over the effected part, the relief will be prompt and satisfactory. Price 25c, 50c and $1 per bottle. Sold at J. Frank Hawk's drugstore, this city.—Adv.

replace them. The insurance at Lloyd's had risen to a figure which made the price of food prohibitive to the mass of the people by the time it had reached the market. The hour, which under ordinary circumstances stood at five pence, was already at one and two pence. Beef was 3 shillings and four pence a pound and mutton 2 shillings and ninepence. Everything else was in proportion. The government had acted with energy and offered a big bounty for corn to be planted at once. It could only be reaped five months hence, however, and long before then, as the papers pointed out, half the island would be dead from starvation.

Strong appeals had been made to the patriotism of the people, and they were assured that the interference with trade was temporary and that with a little patience all would be well. But already there was a marked rise in the death rate, especially among children, who suffered from want of milk, the cattle being slaughtered for food. There was serious rioting in the Lancashire and fields and in the midlands, together with a socialistic upheaval in the east of London, which had assumed the proportions of a civil war. Already there were responsible papers which declared that England was in an impossible position and that an immediate peace was necessary to prevent one of the greatest tragedies in history. It was my task now to prove to them that they were right.

It was May 2 when I found myself back in the war in the north of the estuary of the Thames. The Beta was sent on to the Solent to block it and take the place of the famous Kappa. And now I was brooding Britain's London, Southampton, the River of the North, the North Sea, the Glasgow approach—each was a scene of my boat. Great lines of ships were lined up, pointing their supplies into Galway and the west of Ireland, where provisions were hoarded that had ever been known. Tens of thousands were embarking from Britain for Ireland in order to escape from starvation. But could not transplant a whole nation population. The main body of the people by the middle of May was actually starving. At that date wheat was at 100, maize and barley at 80. Even the most obstinate had begun to see that the situation could not possibly continue.

In the great towns starving crowds clamored for bread before the municipal offices, and public officials everywhere were attacked and often murdered to obtain bread composed largely of desperate women who had seen their infants perish before their eyes. In the country, roads, hedges and woods of every sort were used as food. In London the people, thousands of ministers were surrounded by strong pickets of soldiers, without a battalion of guards was armed permanently round the houses of parliament. The lives of the prime minister and of the foreign secretary were continually threatened and occasionally attempted. Yet the government had entered upon the war with the full consent of every party in the state. The time, the place, the people, who had not the foresight to understand that unless Britain grew her own supplies of necessary means of a tunnel she had some way of conveying them into the island all her might expended in getting her army and her fleet was a mere waste of money so long as her antagonist had a few submarines and men who could use them. England has been stupid, but has got off scot-free.

CHAPTER V. Starvation Brings Peace.

It would be a mere repetition of what I have already described if I were to recount all the proceedings during that first few days after I resumed my station. During my absence the ships had taken heart and had begun to come up again. In the first day I got four. After that I had to go far further inland, and again I picked up several in French waters. Once I had a narrow escape through one of my Kingston valves getting some grit into it and refusing to act when I was below the surface. Our margin of buoyancy just carried us through. By the end of that week the channel was clear again, and both Beta and my own boat were down west once more. There was no encouraging messages from our British consort, who in turn had heard from Delta at Liverpool. Our task was completely done. We could not prevent all food from passing into the British Islands, but at least we had raised what did get in to a price which put it far beyond the means of the penniless, workless multitudes. In vain the government commanded it all and doled it out as a general feed for the garrison or for troops. The task was too great—the responsibility too horrible. Even the proud and stubborn English could not face it any longer.

I remember well how the news came to me. I was lying at the time off Seeley Bill when I saw a small war vessel coming down channel. It had never been my policy to attack any vessel coming down. My torpedoes and even my shells were too precious for that. I could not help being attracted, however, by the movements of this ship, which came slowly zigzagging in my direction.

"Looking for me," thought I. "What on earth does the foolish thing hope to do if she could find me?" I was lying awash at the time and not ready to go below in case she should come for me. But at that moment—she was about half a mile away—she turned her quarter, and there, to my amazement, was the red flag with the blue circle, our own beloved flag, flying from her peak. For a moment I thought that this was some clever dodge of the enemy to tempt me with-in range. I touched up my glasses and called on Vorpal. Then we both recognized the vessel. It was the Beta, the only one left intact of our own cruisers. What could she be doing flying the flag in the enemy's waters? Then I understood it and, turning to Vorpal, we threw ourselves into each other's arms. It could only mean an armistice—or peace!

And it was peace. We learned the glad news when we had run outside the Jura and the ringing cheers which greeted us had at last died away. Our orders were to report ourselves at once at Blankenberg. Then she passed on down that not to collect the others. We returned to port upon the surface, steaming through the whole British fleet as we passed up the North sea. The crews clustered thick along the sides of the vessels to watch us. I can see now that sullen, angry faces. Many shook their fists and cursed us as we went by. It was not that we had defied them. I will do them the justice to say that the English, as the old story has proved, fear to resent an unjust a brave enemy, but that they thought us cowardly to attack merchant ships and avoid the warships. It is like the Arabs, who think that a dead attack is a mean, unmanly device. War is not merely a big game, my English friends. It is a desperate business to gain the upper hand and one must use one's brain in order to lead the weak spot of one's enemy. It is not fair to blame me if I have failed yours. It was my duty. Perhaps those officers and sailors who sailed at the little boat that May morning have by this time done us justice when the first bitterness of undesired defeat was past.

Let others describe the entrance into Blankenberg, the next outbreak of the crowds and the momentary public reception of each successive boat as it arrived. Surely the men deserved the great made them by the state, which has enabled each of them to be independent for life. As a fact of course that long residence in such a state of mental tension in cramped quarters, breathing an impure atmosphere, will bring them a record. The country may well be proud of such sailors.

The terms of peace were not made onerous for we were in no condition to make Great Britain our permanent enemy. We knew well that we had won the war by the instrument which would never be allowed to be again and that in a few years the island power would be as strong as ever, stronger perhaps for the lesson that she had learned. It would be useless to provoke such an antagonist. A mutual salute of flags was exchanged, the color of the flag was adjusted by arbitration, and we claimed no indemnity beyond an undertaking on the part of Britain that she would pay any damages which an international court might award to France or to the United States for injury received through the operations of our submarines. So ended the war.

Of course England will not be brought mapping in such a fashion again. Her foolish blindness is partly explained by her delusion that her enemy would not torpedo merchant vessels. Common sense should have told her that her enemy would play the game that she herself had played. They would not in quite what they could do, but they would do it first and talk about it afterward. The opinion of the whole world now is that if a blockade were proclaimed one might do what one could with those who tried to break it and that it was as reasonable to prevent food from reaching England in wartime as it would be for a besieger to prevent the retreating of a beleaguered fortress.

I cannot end this account better than by quoting the first few paragraphs of a leader in the Times, which appeared shortly after the declaration of peace. It may be taken to epitomize the general opinion of England upon the meaning and lessons of the episode.

"In all this miserable business," said the writer, "which has cost us the loss of a considerable portion of our merchant fleet and more than 60,000 civilian lives, there is just one consolation to be found. It lies in the fact that our temporary conqueror is a power which is not strong enough to reap the fruits of her victory. Had we endured this humiliation at the hands of any of the great powers it would certainly have entailed the loss of all our crown colonies and tropical possessions besides the payment of a huge indemnity. We were absolutely at the feet of our conqueror and had no possible alternative but to submit to her terms however onerous. Norland has had the good sense to understand that she must not abuse her temporary advantage, and has been generous in her dealings. In the gap of any other power we should have ceased to exist as an empire.

"Then now we are not out of the wood. Some one may maliciously pick a quarrel with us before we get our house in order and use the easy weapon which has been demonstrated. It is to meet such a contingency that the government has rushed enormous stores of food at the public expense into the country in a very few months the new harvest will have appeared. On the whole, we can face the immediate future without undue depression, though there remain some causes for anxiety. These will no doubt be energetically handled by this new and efficient government which has taken the place of those discredited politicians who led us into a war with out having foreseen how helpless we were against an obvious form of attack.

"Already the lines of our reconstruction are evident. The first and most important is that our party men realize that there is something more vital than their academic disputes about free trade or protection and that all theory must give way to the fact that a country is in an artificial and dangerous condition if she does not provide within her own borders sufficient food at least to keep life in her population. Whether this should be brought about by a tax on foreign foodstuffs or by a bounty upon home products or by a combination of the two is now under discussion. But all parties are combined upon the principle, and, though it will undoubtedly entail either a rise in prices or a deterioration in quality in the food of the working classes, they will at least be insured against so terrible a visitation as that which is fresh in our memories. At any rate, we have got past the stage of argument. It must be so. The increased prosperity of the farming interest and, as we will hope, the cessation of agricultural emigration will be benefits to be counted against the obvious disadvantages.

"The second lesson is the immediate construction of not one, but two, double-lined railways under the channel. We stand in a white sheet over the matter, since the project has always been discouraged in these columns, but we are prepared to admit that, had such railway communication been combined with adequate arrangements for forwarding supplies from Marseilles, we should have avoided our recent surrender. We still insist that we cannot trust entirely to a tunnel, since our enemy might have mines in the Mediterranean, but in a single contest with my power of the north of Europe it would certainly be of inestimable benefit. There may be dangers attendant upon the existence of a tunnel, but it must now be admitted that they are trivial compared to those which come from its absence. As to the building of large fleets of merchant submarines for the carriage of food, that is a new departure which will be an additional insurance against the danger which has left so dark a page in the history of our country."

THE END.

Earth's Diameter.

What is the greatest diameter of the earth? "At the equator," is the common answer; this is not strictly true, for the actual diameter is modified by conditions on the surface. According to the eminent Professor Henry, the greatest diameter is that taken from the summit of Mount Chimborazo, in Ecuador, 20,136 feet above sea level. The line drawn about the earth from this point emerges on the opposite side on a high point on the coast of Sumatra, giving a diameter of 7,929 miles.

Get posted, read the Advocate.

Coldest on it. "Huh!" contemplation. Uncle Oracle then said a spell of low temperature. You don't know anything of it. Why, I remember eighteen hundred and thirty when it was so cold that if you blew water out of a bottle like a gun, the water would freeze cold in five minutes. Worse than that, your breath would freeze before it got to your throat. I know a stutler who talked chopped ice, and a fellow who talked so that his remarks froze in his throat and had to be extracted with a cork-screw. You had to keep your watch every now and then and it would tick itself full of particles of ice and stop running. Us boys used to have a great joke. When visitors came we would slip up and put a lot of frozen shrieks and howls in the fireplace, and when they thawed out they yell like demons and we'd have a good laugh at the visitors' surprise. Aw, yes, it was colder cold than that winter. —Exchange.

One Was Enough.

The British academy once had printed a few copies of an important work for presentation to some foreigners who, from their prominence in the scientific world, were best entitled to be honored with the gift. Professor Alry, the astronomer royal, was requested to make a selection of the names. A few days after he had sent in his list he was informed by the secretary of the academy that "the lords" were struck by the number of unknown names included and that they wished to make an inquiry on the subject. Alry asked the secretary for some specifications as to the names referred to.

"Well, as an example," said the secretary, "here is the name of Professor O. J. Jones of Goringham. Who is he?"

"Jones is one of the greatest mathematicians of the age," said Alry, "and among the two or three most eminent ministers in physical astronomy now living. Who else do you wish to know about?"

"No one else. That will do," replied the secretary.

His Advice.

A young genius named McCarthy went to Commodore Vanderbilt and gave him a suggestion which led the commodore to organize all the little railroads between New York and Chicago into one. Before McCarthy went to Vanderbilt he went to a friend for advice. Here is what his friend told him about the commodore:

"Don't let him scare you. He's as full of power as a turbine. Has a good deal of white in him. Likes resistance; so does every great force. He's fought a thousand difficulties. He'll take you for another and pitch you, like as not. Don't let him scare you. If he jumps on you, jump on him. He'll enjoy it and begin to respect you. It's like putting a belt on the turbine. You'll take off a bit of his power and ease him down."

Surer.

It is to be regretted that the man who counts on his fingers is not apt to be so disappointed as the man who counts on his friends.

Tackling a Hopeless Task.

"I am now engaged on a beautiful design for a new coat," said the artist. "I don't see why we need it," replied Miss Cayenne. "You can't make money so good looking as to render it any more popular than it already is."

Attacking School System.

Small Boy—"Father what is an equinox?" Fond Parent—"What in the world do you go to school for? Don't you study mythology? An equinox is a mythical animal, half horse, half ox. The name is derived from the Latin 'equine,' horse, and 'ox.' Dear me, they teach you absolutely nothing that is useful nowadays!"

Had the Right Idea.

The tailor's sign in a little inland town was an apple—simply an apple. The people were amazed at it. They came in crowds to the tailor, asking him what on earth the meaning of the sign was. The tailor, with a complacent smile, replied: "If it hadn't been for an apple, where would the clothing business be today?"

Skeleton in the Floor.

That California was one time the home of almost every kind of animal has received further proof by the discovery of a skull and other bones of a huge wild bear in Imperial valley. The find was made on a big ranch, where a tractor plow was breaking up the ground for a cotton field. One tusk of the great pig lacks just a fraction of being 10 inches long. The other is broken.

Monsters of the Deep.

That there are terrible monsters in the deep there can be no doubt. One of these is the whale. It was only in 1908 that a whale devastated the fish traps off Port Townsend, Wash., because the fishermen had captured one of its young. A whaler recently put in port in Liverpool with the arm of an octopus 25 feet long. The arm had been taken from the mouth of a whale he had killed and had stuck in the huge animal's throat. The octopus is doubtless a more fearful animal than the sea serpent.

Duruy's History of the World

Four splendid cloth volumes, full of portraits, sketches, maps, diagrams

Today is the climax of a hundred years of preparation. Read in this timely, authoritative, complete, AND THE ONLY CONDENSED classic world history—of which over 2,000,000 copies have been sold in France alone—a work that has taken place in the inner councils of Europe during the past one hundred years. Read in these entrancing pages how Russia has for years craftily been trying to escape from her darkness—to get a year-round open port, with its economic freedom. Read how Germany and Austria, fearful of the monster's latent strength, have been trying to checkmate her and how they have pinned all in this last, supreme stake.

The Lesson of the Past

This master of the pen shows you the glow that was Greece's and the grandeur that was Rome's. He guides you through the Middle Ages, the picturesque old days of feudalism and the crusades, through the Renaissance up to contemporary history, which Prof. Duruy completes in brilliant manner. In the story of the past he is the greatest of today. And you will understand them better when you get the Review of Reviews for a year—for the Review of Reviews will give you a sane interpretation of the events that are taking place with such rapidity. It is not enough to read the daily newspaper. Your ability to comprehend conditions, and to discuss them rationally depends on a true interpretation of the meaning and the reason why "of events. In your mind you must build order out of chaos—and the Review of Reviews will do it for you.

NOTICE

To all persons who are contemplating having a new road opened or an old one changed, is hereby requested to file your petitions as soon as possible so I can make my surveys and estimate cost of work by April 1st, in order to ask the Fiscal Court to lay sufficient levy to cover same, besides it is my intention to personally look after all construction work when spring opens up and I do not want them to have any instrument work to do, as I can do this work during the winter season when no road work can be done, and then when spring opens I could devote my entire time to looking after the roads all Spring, Summer and Fall, so get in your petitions in once and I will push all litigations to the full extent.

Yours for Good Roads,

THOS. HUBBARD,
Acting Road Engineer.

CORROBORATION.
OF INTEREST TO BARBOURVILLE READERS.

For months Barbourville citizens have seen in these columns enthusiastic praise of Doan's Kidney Pills, by residents of this locality.

Would these prominent people recommend a remedy that had not proven reliable? Would they confirm their statements after years had elapsed if personal experience had not shown the remedy to be worthy of endorsement?

The following statement should carry conviction to the minds of every Barbourville reader:

Mrs. Julia A. Parker, College Hill, London, Ky., says: "I was laid up with my back and kidneys and confined to the house. My back ached constantly and was so painful that I couldn't lift. I would be up one day and down the next and was always suffering from the terrible ache in my back. Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me and I began taking them. They helped me wonderfully and by using them I have escaped all the sufferings of the previous winters. I gladly confirm what I said several years ago concerning Doan's Kidney Pills." Price 75c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Parker had. Foster-McBarn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

Dr E M Howard and Mr. Smith, of Harlan, were in Barbourville a couple of days last week looking after their coal and timber interests. These two gentlemen were fortunate enough to come up on a couple of wild turkeys between here and their camp in Clay county and each of them killed a bird which dressed up about 8 1/2 pounds.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed for ever: nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Good Roads Meeting

On Monday the 4th day of this month was the first day of Circuit Court. Then was a spirited meeting of the citizens. A motion was made and carried that Judge Thos. G. Hammons was elected Chairman of the meeting, who stated that an election was called for March 6, 1914. He stated that he was in favor of the bond issue.

Judge S. B. Dishman was then called on and came forward and delivered a fine address, giving the law in its true interpretation. Judge James D. Black was next called and in his usual way delivered a splendid address, stating that he was in favor of the bond issue. J. M. Robison was called for and made a splendid address and stated that he was in favor of the bond. Capt. B B Golden was called for and responded with an eloquent appeal for the issue of the bond, and while he was talking he called for a rising vote, and out of 400 or 500 it was unanimous for the issue of bonds. Hon. E N. Baldwin was called and made a splendid talk in favor of the bonds.

Judge J. T. Stamper was called for and made an able appeal for the Good Roads, this having been his "hobby" for many years.

Dr. J. S. Lock delivered a splendid address. Every man present seemed obediently interested, and it looks as though the voters will stand as a unit on election day March 6th and that there is no doubt but that if the election was to be held on today it would be almost a unanimous vote in favor of the bond.

Judge E. B. Sampson gave a talk in which he explained his position and urged all to take a part in the election and vote for the issue of a $200,000 in bonds as is called for in the call for the election of March 6th. Short addresses were made by Nelson Messer, C. B. Wilson, S. T. Jackson and many others.

A Spelling Lesson

What does Ghonghphtheight-teen spell?

Do you give it up? It spells potato—that is, according to the following. Gh stands for p, as in the last letters in hiccough; ough for o, as in dough; phth stands for t, as in phthisis; eigh stands for a, as in neighbor; the stands for t, as in grissette; and eau stands for o, as in beau.

Thus you have p-o-t-a-t-o.
